Another dry weekend with sunny spells greeted the riders for the first race of the 45 road club calendar. The only down side was the nagging cold wind that pushed the finishing times a couple of minutes slower than would normally be seen this time of year. A change of venue and time probably helped to produce a reasonable turnout considering the fact that it was Mothers day.

The event was won by the ever fit Stuart Wright.

Simon Fitzhugh took the club honours in a race long tussle with Phil Garlick, Simon could see his minute man Phil up the road but, try as he might he could not catch him, until he got past the Cogenhoe hill.

Cath Weiss was out sporting her new Cult racing club kit and rode her training bike to a good time. Bob Swannack was probably regretting the recent lack of training miles and nagging injury, but still rode hard on a windy day.

Michael had put in a 70 mile training ride the day before, but still put in a fine ride and Melvyn always tries his hardest even on the foulest of days, he was churning the biggest of gears even up Whiston.

Thanks to Graham and Donna for time keeping and putting out the signs and to the riders for supporting the event.
